A holiday to remember

We were in good spirits after spending the whole summer camping in Europe. Italy was our final destination and we stayed at a fantastic campsite among big trees.

One evening we decided to go to a traditional Italian restaurant. We had been cooking for ourselves for so long that it seemed like a real treat to have someone prepare our meal for us. Everyone got dressed up and headed off towards the town. The food was delicious. After eating there was a special dancing demonstration by some of the locals. We clapped and cheered as they whirled around the dance floor. Then, they made us have a go. We had a great time trying to get the moves right.

When the music stopped suddenly we noticed that everything in the restaurant was shaking from side to side. " Quick! Get under the table! It's an earthquake" shouted one of the waiters. We were shaking with fear by the time the quake was over. It lasted only a minute but it felt like much longer. Luckily, no one was injured and there were only some broken plates and glasses. One thing is certain though – we will always remember the night when our dancing nearly brought the house down!
